

Are the parents' home? Are you sure?

Love Enough to Ask

Adults have to maintain a careful balancing act with their kids. We must trust our kids, while at the same time make sure that they have age appropriate privileges as well as limits. Your kids will know you care about them when you ask where they will be, who they will be with, and what they will be doing.

- Understand the need for youth people to bond with their peers as they mature. They love spending time with their friends.
- Get to know their friends and their friends' parents
- Make it a practice to call friends' parents before activities.
- Verify that an adult is present in the home prior to dropping off your child at a friends' house.
- Make sure that the adult in the home has your contact information to call you if plans change or an emergency arises.
- Connect with other parents using social media

Summer ALERT

Among students who drank recently, 65% say they usually drink alcohol at another person's house.
